

Ana Santos Pinto is Assistant Professor at the Department of Political Studies and Assistant Vice-Dean of the Faculty of Social and Human Sciences at NOVA University of Lisbon (NOVA FCSH). She is also Researcher and Executive Director of the Portuguese Institute of International Relations (IPRI-NOVA), member of the Board of Trustees of Luso-American Development Foundation (FLAD) and member of the Advisory Council of Anna Lindh Foundation. Between 2018 and 2019, she was Secretary of State for National Defense of the Portuguese Government. She was Associate Researcher at the National Institute of Defense (Portugal, 2013-2018), Research Consultant for the United Nations in the Alliance of Civilizations Project (2008-2010), advisor for International Relations of the Minister of National Defense of the XVII Constitutional Government (2006-2009) and Research Assistant at the Institute of Strategic and International Studies (2001-2003). She holds a PhD in International Relations from Universidade NOVA de Lisboa; Master in History of International Relations from the Instituto Superior de Ciências do Trabalho e da Empresa (ISCTE-IUL) and a degree in Political Science and International Relations from Universidade NOVA de Lisboa. Her main areas of academic research are Identities in International Politics, European Union Foreign and Security Policy and Middle Eastern geopolitics. She regularly collaborates with various media outlets.

Carlos Gaspar is an advisor to the National Defense Institute. He is an invited Full Professor at the Autonomous University of Lisbon (UAL)-Department of International Relations. He is also an integrated researcher at the Portuguese Institute of International Relations at Universidade Nova de Lisboa (IPRI-NOVA) and Associate Researcher at OBSERVARE-Observatory of External Relations at UAL. Advisor to the Board of Directors of Fundação Oriente. Member of the European Council on Foreign Relations. Member of the Portuguese Political Science Association. Member of the Scientific Council of the Real Instituto Elcano. He holds a Master in International Relations from the Institut d'Études Politiques in Paris and a PhD in International Relations from Universidade Nova de Lisboa. He has published articles in Portuguese and international academic journals and he is the author of the books, in Portuguese, The Post-Cold War (Tinta-da-china, 2016); The Balance of Europe (Alêtheia, 2017); Raymond Aron and the Cold War (Alêtheia, 2018); The Return of Anarchy (Alêtheia, 2019); The World of Tomorrow (Francisco Manuel dos Santos Foundation, 2020) and The End of Europe (Instituto da Defesa Nacional, 2022).

Elena Davlikanova is a Democracy Fellow with the Center for European Policy Analysis. She is also an Associate Professor in the International Economic Relations Department at Sumy State University. She received her Candidate of Sciences degree (Ph.D.) in management from the Sumy State University in Ukraine. Since 2011, she has worked for the National Democratic Institute and the Friedrich Ebert Foundation Office in Ukraine where she has contributed to the democratic development of Ukraine by implementing national level projects for the legislative, executive, and judicial branches of power, as well as to Ukraine's European integration. Her work is focused on analyzing opportunities for Ukraine-Russia reconciliation with regard to fascism and totalitarianism in Russia and their effects on Russia, Ukraine, and global peace. She also studies historical, social, economic, and cultural narratives about Ukraine and Russia, their connection to on-the-ground situations, and their influence on decision-making practices and processes. She is an experienced researcher, who in 2022 conducted the studies “The Work of Ukrainian Parliament at Wartime” and “Understanding Ukraine: The Battle of Narratives.” Her interests also include promoting gender equality. Among other initiatives, she facilitated the compilation of the book “100+ Stories of Women and Girls from Russia’s War against Ukraine.” Her work was based on the facilitated by her national level project aimed at education reform.

Gustav Gressel is a senior policy fellow with the Wider Europe Programme at the European Council on Foreign Relations’ Berlin office. His topics of focus include Russia, Eastern Europe, and defense policy. Before joining ECFR, Gressel worked as a desk officer for international security policy and strategy in the Bureau for Security Policy of the Austrian Ministry of Defence from 2006 to 2014, and as a research fellow of the Commissioner for Strategic Studies with the Austrian MoD from 2003 to 2006. He was also a research fellow with the International Institute for Liberal Politics in Vienna. Before his academic career he served five years in the Austrian Armed Forces. Gressel holds a PhD in Strategic Studies at the Faculty of Military Sciences at the National University of Public Service, Budapest and a Masters Degree in political science from Salzburg University. He is the author of numerous publications regarding security policy and strategic affairs and a frequent commentator on international affairs. His opinions have appeared in media such as the New York Times, the Guardian, Die Welt, NZZ, Bild, the Diplomat, New Eastern Europe, Foreign Policy, Gazeta Prawna, Rzeczpospolita, Kyiv Post, the Moscow Times, Capital, the Telegraph, the Economist, Newsweek, Deutsche Welle, RTL, al Jazeera, TVP, TRT, Polskie Radio, RFI, FM4, Ukraine Today, and Radio Free Europe.

Isabel Ferreira Nunes is the Director of the National Defense Institute. She holds a PhD in Political Science from the University of Twente (Netherlands), a postdoctoral degree in International Relations from the University of Groningen (Netherlands) and a Master’s in Strategy from the Higher Institute of Social and Political Sciences, at the Technical University from Lisbon. Between 2006 and 2008, she was Deputy Director of the National Defense Institute. She was responsible for the development of several research projects in the field of politics foreign affairs, security and European defence, is also the author of several publications on these themes. She has actively participated in European networks, such as the initiatives developed within the framework of the European Security and Defense College or the Network of European Strategic Studies Institutions.

Justyna Gotkowska is Deputy Director and Head of the Security and Defence Department at the Centre for Eastern Studies (OSW), a Polish analytical institute based in Warsaw. She focuses on security and defence policy of Germany, Nordic and Baltic states, on NATO and EU’s Common Security and Defence Policy from regional perspective as well as on military cooperation in Central and Northern Europe. She writes also about Polish security and defence policy in NATO, in the EU and vis-à-vis the United States. She was visiting scholar at the University of the Bundeswehr Munich and at the Norwegian Institute for Defence Studies and is regular participant in multinational research projects, including at Think Visegrad, Estonia's ICDS and Germany's DGAP. She is graduate of the Institute of Applied Linguistics at the University of Warsaw, and of European Studies at the RWTH Aachen University. She is author of multiple publications and security policy commentator for the Polish and foreign media.

Mónica Dias is Vice-Director of the Institute for Political Studies of the Universidade Católica Portuguesa (UCP), as well as Head of the PhD Program of this School. She leads a Research Group on Peace and Civil Society at the Institute's Research Center and organizes the annual Summit of Democracies, a simulation of a meeting of Democratic States for University and School students. She holds a PhD in Political Science and International Relations from the IEP-UCP and works currently in the field of International Politics focusing on Democracy Studies, Peace Studies and International Conflict as Professor and Senior Researcher. Besides her academic experience, which includes lecturing at the Köln University and scholarships from the DAAD, Gulbenkian and Fulbright, she translated several books and was a lecturer at international youth seminars on multi-cultural Education, Leadership and Conflict Management organized by the European Commission. From 1996 to 2000, she worked at the Portuguese Parliament as consultant for the Committee on Education, Science and Culture.

Patricia Daehnhardt is an advisor to the National Defense Institute. She is an integrated researcher at the Portuguese Institute of International Relations at NOVA University of Lisbon (IPRI-NOVA). She holds a PhD in International Relations from the London School of Economics and Political Science, with a thesis on Germany's foreign policy after unification. She held a post-doc fellowship at IPRI-NOVA. She was Assistant Professor of International Relations at the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences at Lusíada University in Lisbon and Director of the International Relations Section of the Portuguese Association of Political Science. Her work focuses on Germany's foreign, security and defence policy, the European Union's Common Security and Defence Policy, and NATO and transatlantic relations. She is the author of various publications and a commentator to written, radio and TV media.